Researchers benefit from international mobility

- Internationally authored research is more highly cited
(Knowledge, Networks and Nations, 2010, Royal Society)
- Internationally mobile researchers are more productive
(BIS/Elsevier report 2011)
 - Transitory mobility (less than 2 years) occurred in 40% and 44% of researchers in Germany and the UK, respectively, and these groups had a relative productivity of 1.26 and 1.24, respectively (compared to 1 for all researchers)
- Other benefits:
 - professional (new skills, new contacts)
 - personal (broadened horizons)

RESEARCHER LINKS

- Opportunities for early career researchers to build international links between the UK and partner countries
- National partners include FAPESP in Brazil
- Open call for workshops and travel grants (3 month research visit)
- Encourage interdisciplinary interactions and inclusion of social sciences and arts and humanities researchers

Links between the UK and: Brazil, Mexico, Colombia, Morocco, Egypt, Qatar, South Africa, Nigeria, Russia, Turkey, Kazakhstan, Azerbaijan, Pakistan, Bangladesh Thailand, Indonesia, South Korea, Vietnam
